Following the release of his debut Lone City Lights, which received warm support from For Folk's Sake, BBC Introducing, R2 Mag, Amazing Radio and more, singer-songwriter River Child comes with the single Just Need Your Love – a country tinged composition, resplendent in 50s-style echo, distant tinkling ivories and tasty twang.

With a name inspired by a Jimi Hendrix album lying around his room, Hertfordshire born River Child has had a busy year writing new material for his upcoming debut album alongside various radio and TV interviews, sessions and gigging throughout London and the surrounding area.

Just Need Your Love is produced by Ian Wallman, who has worked with the likes of Calvin Harris, Michael Buble and UB40. Lyrically the song tells of being in a relationship that's more complicated than it needs be, whilst trying to focus on the reason you both got together – love.

While growing up River Child would listen attentively to his father playing a mix of guitar styles ranging from Jimi Hendrix style blues and Dylan through to classical guitar pieces. Eventually an inspired River Child picked up the guitar himself. Initially motivated by mainstream Britpop artists like Oasis and The Verve, he soon gravitated towards more folk/acoustic influences as his song-writing took off, gaining inspiration from artists like Neil Young and Simon & Garfunkel for his composition whilst Van Morrison and Paul Simon shaped his vocal style.

Although always soaking up the creativity in the world around him - be it art, film theatre or music, River Child has also had as stint in the ring as a boxer. However, focusing on music now acts as his main outlet.
