"Such sweet and happy songs. I've been supporting him for years"

Graham Norton / Radio 2

Robbie Boyd's debut album So Called Man, produced and mixed by Tristan Ivey (Frank Turner, Magic Numbers) has gained love and support from many. Graham Norton, Paul O'Grady, Jeremy Vine and Tim Rice (Radio 2), Chris Hawkins (6Music), Hattie Pearson (XFM) plus Baylen Leonard and Gary Crowley (Amazing Radio) have all sung their praises and supported Boyd's music on their shows.

An album brimming with positivity, So Called Man has earned Boyd prominent slots in UK festivals, such as Isle Of Wight 2014, as well as making his name at Bestival, Great Escape, Standon Calling and Beautiful Days over the past few years. Robbie Boyd can also boast the proud historical achievement of becoming the first ever Brit to have performed on the roof of the O2 stadium.

Lyrical So Called Man is a breath of fresh air in its tales of hope, belonging and heartbreak, as shown in the tracks I Won't Let You Go and Less Than Friends. Inspired by his experiences of busking in Europe's capital cities, Robbie tells us that the songs from So Called Man are about fighting through the hard times and emerging with your 'faith in the world' still intact.

Accompanying the messages of optimism in the album's lyrics are the uplifting and folk-inspired arrangements provided by Boyd's band, which beautifully compliment his velvety vocals.

As well as performing hits from the album for ITV's 'This Morning' show and enjoying rave live reviews in The Times, Evening Standard and Time Out, Robbie Boyd has also received the praise of Ray Davies (with whom he's teamed up with to write songs). Even the notoriously difficult to please Simon Cowell commented 'I really like the style of singing and the tone of his voice. Never Never Land reminds of Crosby [of Crosby Stills and Nash]'.

With over 10,000 Facebook fans along with 500,000 YouTube views and counting, Boyd has established a loyal and worldwide fanbase. This winter Robbie Boyd will be completing his extensive European tour.

Alongside European dates, Boyd is supporting Gomez, Turin Brakes and Josh Record this autumn. Please visit his website for dates and more info.
